Black Powder

Last month I mentioned that Goex black powder is no longer in business. Indeed, it is difficult to find BP anywhere. With that in mind, I thought I would revisit Pyrodex as a muzzle-loader propellant.

In its favor, it is still readily available for purchase. It also compares favorably with black powder in that BP is classified as an explosive while Pyrodex is not. This advantage leads to one disadvantage. It does not ignite as easily as BP and thus does not work in flintlocks. It is for percussion guns only. I stopped using Pyrodex years ago because it contains potassium perchlorate. On ignition, the perchlorate is consumed leaving a residue of potassium chloride in the barrel. Chloride salts should be avoided as they are corrosive and lead to pitting corrosion in the barrel if not removed. Fortunately, potassium chloride is readily soluble in water so it is easy to clean. If you clean well, this drawback is merely a minor annoyance.

Now, a recent review of the Pyrodex SDS reveals another issue. According to that document, Pyrodex contains 0.5-5.0% silica. Another word for silica is sand. This is potentially worse than the potassium perchlorate issue. Silica has two drawbacks. The first is minor but should be noted. Breathing fumes that contain finely divided silica is not good for your health. Now if you are shooting outside and only occasionally, the exposure risk is minor. It would be a different story if you were shooting it every weekend at the BP woods walk with everybody else shooting it also. As noted, your exposure risk is minor but it should be noted.

The real drawback of the silica component is the fact that it is not consumed in the combustion reaction. Silica is harder than steel. Thus, when you load you are rubbing the silica over the steel causing wear. How much?

Rifle

Sight In Season is now over and it was good year in spite of the scarcity of ammunition. We are now under winter open shooting hours – Sundays 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Next event is the annual Christmas Cookie Shoot Saturday, Dec. 18. For details, see the “coming events page of the DSC website or the P & K flyer.

The Rifle Banquet is Dec. 4. All the league winners will be announced but if you can’t make it, here are the results from two leagues.

In the Tactical Prone league, we had 12 shooters compete and four shooters completed the 10-match course of fire. The overall winner was Larry Remynder with a total score of 1999-135x. Jim Parsons had the “Highest X Count” which is pretty good since he only turned in six scores. Jim Rhodes won “highest singly match” with a 200-17x. In a new category this year, Dave Pierce won the Bench category with a 1996-122x.

In High Power League competition, we had 15 shooters compete and 10 completed the 10 required matches. The Grand Champion was Larry Frey with an average score of 490.2. The position champions are; Standing – Dave Platt (94.0 avg.), Sitting – Rick Nowicke (99.2 avg.), Rapid Prone – Larry Remynder (97.8 avg), and Slow Prone – John Calabria (194.1 avg.) The Highest Single Match award went to Jim Parsons. Lewis Class award winners were Gary Dawson for Class A, Jay Jackson for Class B and Dennis Schafer for Class C.

Well, if you are modern muzzleloader hunter and you are shooting 20 rounds a year, its probably not worth worrying about. But if you are shooting 300-500 rounds a year it could definitely be a problem. I don't want to find out so I will stick with black powder.

The November BP woods walk was a cold grey overcast day with lots of sleet. We had five participants for this 15-shot event. The author finished first with 12 hits and was forced to supply bean soup for all the contestants. The soup was good but they said I need more practice at it and bring it again for next month. The next BP woods walk is December 12.

A distressed Great Horned Owl was found on the Sporting Clays course by Dave Oles. The owl was just sitting out in open and did not fly away when approached. A rescue agency was called to care for the owl. The worker who came to get the owl said it was malnourished. Unfortunately, we later found out the owl did not survive.
